Justification for this request

After benchmarking against other academic programs the faculty in the Department of Management determined that the Management Bachelor of Science in Business Administration degree Human Resource Management Concentration program curriculum did not have the depth or breath necessary to best prepare our students for careers in Human Resources Management. Thus, a new Human Resources Management Degree program was has been approved that includes a greater focus on Human Resources Management while offering a broader array of classes from supporting fields to provide a more well rounded curriculum to prepare students for careers in Human Resources Management.
