Description and Justification for this request

Description of request	Justification for request
creating new minor	The Minor in Global Studies is a fifteen-credit-hour program that combines training in intercultural competency with advanced coursework dealing with key global issues, such as international food security, human rights, international conflict, etc. The minor has two requirements, beginning with a Global Issues requirement consisting of a gateway course (INST 2013 Introduction to International and Global Studies) and a global issues course chosen from a range of upper-level options. The second requirement leads students to develop intercultural skills through a mix of world language and area studies courses, with the possibility to apply three credit hours earned through an international experience, whether a study abroad course, international internship, or foreign research trip. The program stems from a broader push to internationalize the campus at the University of Arkansas and enhance global citizenship and global

	awareness among students. It was developed by a task force formed by the Provost's International Education Advisory Committee, whose members included representatives from all six undergraduate colleges (AFLS, ARCH, ARSC, EDUC, ENGR, WCOB). Fulbright representatives included the director of International Studies and the chair of the Department of World Languages. The task force agreed that it would be best to design and situate the minor within the International Studies Program in Fulbright College. This means that the proposed framework will require no additional resources, since it plans to use existing capacity in the Area Studies and International Studies programs and in the Department of World Languages, Literatures, and Cultures. We now have the faculty capacity to offer additional sections of INST 2013 Introduction to International and Global Studies as needed, along with the added sections and seats in the upper-level INST courses. A Global Studies minor would be a welcome addition to the INST program. Where the program has dealt with varieties of international interaction and exchange, the global studies focus would allow the program to enhance its focus on contemporary challenges and issues operating on a worldwide scale. This will help University of Arkansas students better understand the issues shaping the contemporary world and make them active participants in addressing worldwide challenges while preparing them for careers involving international or intercultural dimensions.
